Scope and Content Note

The papers of Hedrick Laurence Smith (1933-), span the years 1923-1992, with the bulk of the papers concentrated in the period 1965-1990. The majority of the items consist of research material for Smith's books and television productions about the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics (USSR) and United States politics. The collection consists of six main series: Correspondence, Speeches and Writings File, Television Productions, Subject File, Notebooks, and Miscellany, plus oversize and security classified material.

The Correspondence series, 1959-1990, contains a wide variety of professional and personal correspondence. Much of the material consists of social exchanges such as congratulations on awards and accomplishments, particularly for his books, The Russians and The Power Game, and his Pulitzer Prize award in 1974 for international reporting. Other items relate to speaking engagements, articles, and book publishing efforts apart from his New York Times duties or to descriptions of his assignments, especially letters to his parents while Smith was stationed in Moscow from 1971 to 1974 as bureau chief for the Times. Among the prominent and frequent correspondents in this series are Julian Bach, William F. Buckley, Emanuel R. Freedman, W. Averell Harriman, Lillian Hellman, Anthony Lewis, Robert Manning, James Reston, Neil Sheehan, Arthur Ochs Sulzberger, and Tom Wicker. There is additional correspondence and material relating to Smith's Pulitzer Prize of 1974 in the Miscellany series.

Comprising almost one half of the collection, the Speeches and Writings File, 1923-1992, reflects Smith's productivity in various formats, including speeches, articles, books, and radio broadcasts. The majority of the articles consists of drafts of Smith's New York Times articles from 1976 to 1984. Smith also filed drafts and printed articles in his research files for The Russians and in the Subject File. The early articles document Smith's tenure as a staff reporter covering the civil rights movement in the South and space exploration for United Press International from 1959 to 1962.

Papers relating to Smith's best-selling books The Russians, The New Russians, and The Power Game include research material, notebooks, and notes. The Russians focused on the daily lives of the Russian people under the Communist system, while The New Russians explored the change for Soviet citizens with the introduction of glasnost (openness) and perestroika (restructuring). Among the prominent subjects in files related to The Russians are Russian culture, dissent, nationalities and minorities, religion, the economy, United States/Soviet relations, and the exodus of Jews. Subject files on dissent also include extensive material relating to dissidents Aleksandr Galich, Roy Aleksandrovich Medvedev, Zhores A. Medvedev, Andrei Sakharov, Aleksandr Isaevich Solzhenitsyn, and Vladimir Vysotsky. The Solzhenitsyn files include items relating to a meeting with Smith and Washington Post reporter Robert Kaiser in 1972 and a second interview with Solzhenitsyn two years after his expulsion from the Soviet Union. These files also contain material pertaining to the publication of a revised edition of The Russians in 1983.

The New Russians chronicles the reforms in the Soviet Union under Mikhail Gorbachev and how the Soviet people coped with these changes. Subjects represented are nationalities, politics, consumer and economic issues, Mikhail Sergeevich Gorbachev, and glasnost in the media and in intellectual expressions. There is overlap between the research files for this book and files for Smith's television production, "Inside Gorbachev's USSR," since many of the same topics are featured in both series.

In The Power Game Smith turned his attention to national politics in the United States, focusing on Congress and the executive branch primarily during the presidency of Ronald Reagan. The bulk of this material consists of interview transcripts, notebooks, and notes. Topics featured are lobbying, arms control, defense policies, and the power of Congressional staff. Individuals interviewed for The Power Game include Les Aspin, Howard H. Baker, James Addison Baker, Richard Gordon Darman, Michael K. Deaver, Robert J. Dole, Newt Gingrich, Robert C. McFarlane, Tip O'Neill, John M. Poindexter, and Donald T. Regan. Files for a potential book entitled "Three Presidents: Three Decisions" focus on three critical foreign policy events, the Cuban missile crisis in 1962 during John F. Kennedy's administration, the deescalation of the war in Vietnam before Lyndon Johnson's announcement not to seek reelection in 1968, and the decision by Richard M. Nixon to invade Cambodia in 1970. Also filed with the "Three Presidents" material are items for a projected publication with fellow Times reporter William Beecher on America's "Vietnam turnaround."

The Television Productions series, 1956-1990, includes interviews, research files, notes, notebooks, and scripts documenting Smith's roles as commentator and writer primarily for the productions "Inside Gorbachev's USSR" and "The Power Game." The Gorbachev program provided American viewers with a close look at the Soviet people and dealt with the conflict between reform and the old political system, the efforts toward glasnost in the media, and the escalation of ethnic tensions in some of the Soviet republics. "The Power Game," adapted from Smith's book of the same title, provided an analysis of behind-the-scenes efforts by politicians to gain power and keep it and how they at times used or misused their power. Interview notebooks for "The Power Game" also include transcripts of Smith's introductory comments or "standups" as well as government hearings and speeches.

Papers in the Subject File, 1957-1990, and the Notebooks series, 1966-1990, primarily document Smith's years as a correspondent and bureau chief stationed in Washington, D.C. The notebooks include interviews and conversations with leading officials in Washington and abroad. The bulk of both series relates to the presidential administrations of Jimmy Carter and Ronald Reagan. Topics include the reorganization of Carter's cabinet, peace in the Middle East, Strategic Arms Limitation Talks, the presidential campaigns of 1980 and 1984, Central America, and United States/Soviet relations. The Subject File also contains extensive material concerning the Vietnam conflict during the Nixon administration and Smith's coverage of the Vietnam peace talks in Paris from May through November 1968. Also included are items relating to the Pentagon Papers wiretapping suit in which Smith sued Nixon and officials in his administration for tapping Smith's telephone for several months in 1969.

The Miscellany series, 1957-1988, consists chiefly of correspondence, interviews, biographical material, financial records, and family papers. The bulk of the series consists of papers relating to Smith's Pulitzer Prize for international reporting and his New York Times expense statements recording details of Smith's daily professional activities and contacts with government agencies. The family papers include a compilation of Smith's letters from 1971 to 1972, which were read by his mother at her book club, describing some of his experiences while in Moscow.
